TAVERN OWNER TELLS INQUIRY OF $3,700 FEE

Says He Paid That Sum To "Fix" Difficulty with Liquor Board.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—The first "surprise" witness in the Ohio senate inquiry into the state liquor department had had his say today.

He was 34-year-old David Davis of Amherst, O., a nervous little tavern operator who told the senate special committee yesterday he had paid $3,700 to a Cleveland lawyer to get out of a supposed difficulty with the state liquor control board.

He identified the lawyer as a "Mr. Lefkowitz," and said the money was paid in cash last summer.

Committee Counsel Frank J. Collopy indicated after the hearing was adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday there might in the future be more surprise witnesses—persons not yet mentioned in the inquiry.

This was one turned up by Edmund L. Schuster of Perrysburg, a former state liquor inspector who was the committee's first witness when it began the probe four weeks ago. Schuster was one of the inspectors involved in Davis' trouble with federal bureau of investigation agents.

Witness Tells Story

In committee testimony and in a recess question period by newsmen, Davis gave this story of the beer purchase which eventually led to the payment of money:

May 7, 1946 he purchased 300 cases of beer from a Pat McGinty, whom, he said, once ran a Cleveland cafe. He was arrested and charged with buying stolen property May 8, 1946, by FBI agents. Federal charges later were dropped, however.

When he later was told by a Lorain detective that he was in danger of having his liquor permit "pulled" by the state liquor board, Davis said he came here for a conference with Frank Kleinfelder, the state enforcement chief. After their talk he hired Lefkowitz as counsel, he said.

Davis asserted the payment to Lefkowitz occurred two days after a second conference with Kleinfelder, who had told him he would need time to study the record. At the second conference, Davis said that both he and another tavern owner, Lou Goodman of Strongsburg, received a "pretty good bawling out."

"Less Expensive Way"

When Collopy interrupted to ask why the matter had not been brought to the state liquor board's attention, Davis replied:

"He (Kleinfelder) said it could

STRIKE VOTE TAKEN AT POWER HOUSE

50 Workers in CIO Union Act at Scioto Plant.

The employes of the Scioto Plant, Ohio Public Service Co. have voted unanimously to file a 30-day strike notice, it was announced today by T. G. Ellinwood, president of Local 353, Utility Workers Union of America (CIO).

The strike vote was taken at a meeting in CIO headquarters Monday night, Mr. Ellinwood said. He explained that although the 50 employes of the plant were 100 per cent organized in Local 353, they have not been able to obtain recognition and as a result have not participated in wage increases and contract proceedings.

The union president pointed out the strike vote was not taken against the company and emphasized that relations between the union and the company have always been harmonious. In a National Labor Relations Board election last fall the workers of the plant voted to join the Operating Engineers union, but following the election no union representative appeared to sign up the men, Mr. Ellinwood explained. Employes of the plant then met, without any outside pressure, he said, and voted to form Local 353 CIO. However, the Operating Engineers still hold the bargaining rights at the plant as a result of last fall's election even though it has no membership there.

Mr. Ellinwood pointed out that one of the reasons the men voted to form Local 353 was that the CIO represents the bargaining agency in all production departments in the Ohio Public Service Company's other plants.

Marshall Presses For German Unity

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 12—Secretary of State George C. Marshall was reported determined to win Soviet approval for early economic unification of Germany as the third session of the four-power foreign ministers council opened today.

At the same time, British Foreign Secretary Bevin was expected to counter Russian charges against the British zone's demilitarization program with a demand that the Russians reveal the status of their German prisoners of war.

Authoritative sources said the British minister would ask a series of questions on what the Russians were doing with their prisoners, believed in total in the neighborhood of 3,000,0000. The Russians thus far have shunted aside all questions on the subject.

Implied Warning Seen

Behind the American drive for economic unification was an implied warning that if the Russians failed to go along, they would get fewer industrial plants for reparations. This trend in American policy closely paralleled that of the British, and became apparent as the ministers began probing the complex problem of Germany with the eastern and western powers split at the outset.

Bevin's advisers worked until the early hours of the morning to prepare what was described by one of them as a "stinging reply" to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's charges against the western powers yesterday. The British foreign minister himself briefed the envoys of New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Canada this morning on the developments.

The meeting today opened at 4 p. m. (8 a. m. eastern standard time).

Work on Austrian Treaty

Deputies of the foreign ministers, meanwhile, worked on the Austrian treaty, which many expected would be completed at Moscow. The deputies appeared snarled on minor points, but on one of the major ones—the question of German assets in Austria—a special committee will examine a French proposal today.

Informed diplomats here looked to President Truman's message in Washington today to reinforce effectively the secretary's position.

The mere fact that the President was expected to ask for United States economic assistance to faltering Middle East countries in evident support of a British bulwark against feared Soviet expansion was regarded here as a very strong development of the American line, which is bound to affect the success of the current Big Four conference.

Some diplomatic sources said the action was timed to coincide with Marshall's presence here, so as to tell the Russians in effect that if they want to do business on that basis, now is the time to get to work—otherwise the outlook may be gloomy.

Marshall's Plea Stressed

Marshall's plea for Big Four unity at the outset of the talks on the German problem was stressed by American diplomats. Marshall is described as being determined to avoid the usual quibbling at Big Four conferences over what he considers minor points raised by Russian propaganda.

The attitude seems to be one of serious business in which the United States has the power to ignore, if necessary, pin-pricking attacks.

LEGISLATURE AWAITS BUDGET

Clears Deck for Gov. Herbert's Message Due at Session Tonight.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—The legislature cleared its decks today to receive Gov. Thomas J. Herbert's budget for 1947-48 state operations at a joint senate-house session tonight about 8 p. m.

Reports indicated he would recommend some $440,000,000 in general fund appropriations, about $38,000,000 more than provided for the past biennium.

Speculation over the budget amount for schools heightened when the Brooks-Reiners-McKie bill to provide $14,500,000 annually for teacher bonuses was referred to the senate education committee which only last week recommended passage of the $85,000,000 Daniels-Cramer school measure.

To Continue Program

Sen. Kyle P. Brooks (R-Hamilton), who introduced the teacher-bonus plan, said it would continue the 1946 school foundation program costing $59,874,000 and that the bonuses for low-salaried instructors would increase the amount to $74,374,000.

Herbert said the sum in the revised Daniels-Cramer measure was "not far off" the amount recommended in his budget. The bill has been held up by the senate rules committee pending submission of the budget.

Only routine bills were scheduled for action in afternoon sessions of both houses but committees conducted hearings on batches of controversial legislation, including veterans bonuses and bigger jobless benefit payments.

Weigh Jobless Pay Boost

The senate commerce and labor committee, turned today to legislation proposing boost in bureau of unemployment compensation benefits to jobless workers from $21 to $30 a week and extension of the payment period from 22 to 32 weeks.

Senate and house military affairs sub-committees sought agreement on a plan to pay bonuses to War II veterans, and the senate taxation group called up a revised bill to reenact the .65 per cent utilities excise tax, expiring April 30.

The senate yesterday sent to the governor for signing bills which reenact the cent-a-gallon liquid fuel levy for two years and make the two-cents-a-pack cigaret tax permanent. The two taxes yield a total of $30,000,000 annually, and would have expired March 31.

The house passed measures to take constables off their present fee basis and place them on straight salaries determined by township trustees.

SOLONS BUZZ OVER BID TO OUTLAW REDS

Proposal To Ban Communist Party Draws Varied Comment.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 12—A proposal by Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach that the Communist party in America be outlawed today evoked comment on Capitol Hill.

Rep. Kersten (R-Wis) heartily endorsed the idea after Rep. Hartley (R-NJ) said he would introduce a bill to ban the party.

A member of the house committee on un-American activities said "whether we outlaw the party or not, we are going to have Communists. Maybe it would be better to keep them out in the open where we can see what at least part of them are doing and figure out ways of combatting them."

Schwellenbach made his suggestion yesterday while testifying before the house labor committee.

The house passed yesterday two big and important appropriation bills and sent them to the senate. One provides $12,388,029,971 for the treasury and postoffice departments — $897,072,750 under President Truman's recommendation. The other is a compromise $179,845,668 deficiency bill which among other things, will put the OPA out of business on June 30.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill were these developments:

Atomic — David E. Lilienthal now has the announced support of 40 senators for confirmation as chairman of the atomic energy commission with two more reported ready to vote for him but not yet ready to announce. This gives him 42 votes and he needs only 48 to win. Eighteen senators have announced opposition and 35 haven't divulged their position.

Presidential tenure — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) suggested that President Truman be exempt from the two-term presidential limit the G.O.P. desires to write into the constitution. Such a move, he told a reporter "would eliminate any charge that this is legislation against President Truman." The senate was hoping for a vote on the legislation today. A somewhat similar version has passed the house.

Taxes — The house ways and means committee announced it will open two days of hearings tomorrow on a bill to cut income taxes 20 per cent.

4 BUILDINGS RAZED BY FIRE AT FINDLAY

By The Associated Press

FINDLAY, O., March 12—Four downtown Findlay business buildings were wrecked by fire today and firemen still fought the flames more than four hours after their discovery.

Firemen apparently once again were winning control, although dense smoke mushroomed from the structures.

Cause of the fire still was undetermined. Police said a crackling blaze in the rear of Muir's

Ohio Senate Puts Damper On Controversial Anti-Bingo Bill

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—The senate judiciary committee had buried the controversial bingo bill today.

The bill to outlaw the game of bingo as gambling was spiked when the committee voted 7 to 2 last night for indefinite postponement, which liberally interpreted means the measure is a "dead duck."

The proposal was offered by Sen. George G. Schurtz (R-Coshocton).

(Cliff Martin, senate sergeant-at-arms, hung out the "standing room only" sign before half the orderly crowd he estimated at more than 500 had arrived.

Moves for Postponement

After about two hours of speechmaking by both friends and foes of the bill, committee Chairman Fred G. Reuss (R-Allen-ton) moved for indefinite postponement and [illegible] votes only from [illegible] Cramer (R-Lucas) and Shaw (R-Walnut) (R-[illegible]).

Los Angeles Holds 2 Men

Booked on Suspicion of Murder as Slain Women Identified.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, March 12 — The sheriff's office booked two men on suspicion of murder early today after fingerprints identified the second of two women found slain yesterday, the third and fourth such victims in Los Angeles and vicinity in two months.

Sergeant Robert F. Carney said fingerprints sent to the FBI in Washington identified the red-haired woman found along the San Gabriel river, strangled and with her head battered, as Mrs. Mae Lorena Preston, 48, of nearby Bellflower, Calif.

Sheriff's investigators, however, learned that she was known recently as Mrs. Mae Lorena Lund of the same Bellflower address.

Sheriff's Capt. Gordon Bowers said he had booked Frank Funk, 52, a cement contractor, and his son, Myron, 23, a foundry moulder, on suspicion of murder after they told of being friendly with Mrs. Preston, although denying they knew how she was killed.

Deputies, checking Mrs. Preston's residence, found it unlocked and encountered the elder Funk there. Bloodstains were in the house, tending to confirm an earlier theory that the woman was killed in bed, then taken to the river bottoms.

The other woman slain yesterday was Miss Evelyn Winters, 42, for years a film studio legal secretary who of late had been drifting, without permanent residence. Her mother, Mrs. Harriett Winters, frail, 70-year-old baby sitter, said her daughter had become a barroom habitue.

Miss Winters' body, nearly nude, and the head beaten, was found near a string of freight cars. Its discovery was reported by George Franklin Wickliffe, 39-year-old transient of Joplin, Mo., who was booked on suspicion of murder.

Detectives said they did not believe he had anything to do with the killing but would hold him temporarily.

Recently, however, chemists have learned how to manufacture amino acids in the laboratory and this has given doctors a wonderful weapon not only to combat protein deficiencies, but also to supply extra amounts at times when they are especially needed.

Increased protein is necessary during high fever, when large wounds, are present, from which sizable amounts of blood serum can escape, and when a great deal of albumin is being excreted from the kidney because of a kidney disease known as nephorsis. In this disorder treatment with amino acids is of special value.

Not only this, but the whole role of proteins in the nutrition of the body has been shown to be of first importance. According to Dr Howard C. Hopps of Oklahoma a deficiency of protein is an important cause for the slow healing of wounds and when amino acids are given in such cases. Healing is much quicker and more sure. Injuries to the liver as a result of various poisons may be prevented in part by the giving of large amounts of proteins.

There are a number of amino acid preparations available which may be given by mouth under the doctor's direction. Certain of them may also be administered by injection into a vein. In such cases the injection must not be given too rapidly as this may result in sickness to the stomach, flushing, a sensation of heat and perhaps mild pains in the muscles. However these symptoms last only a short time and are not serious.

The amino acid mixture may also be administered through a tube which has been passed through the mouth into the first part of the small intestine, when severe diarrhea is present. The solution is rapidly absorbed from this part of the bowel.

Amino acid mixtures have found an important place in the treatment of a variety of conditions and the physician will prescribe the proper preparation when needed.

DAILY LENTEN MEDITATIONS

IN THE CHRIST OF THE CROSS WE GLORY

Today's Text: "In Him we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our sins, according to the riches of His grace." Ephesians 1:7.

THE Cross means that God is telling to man, in language which is impossible for him to misunderstand, that He is willing to receive back His repentant and trustful children if they repent and believe in His love revealed in the Cross.

The Cross of Christ is a window through which we may look in and see the heart and mind of God. When we are looking at Jesus, we are looking into the face of God. When they crucified Him, Jesus said, "Father, forgive them."

In Jesus the Father stood revealed. The lesson of the Cross is that God's heart is a wounded heart, yet a perfectly forgiving heart. God is telling us in Jesus that though He is hurt and grieved beyond all measure by our sins, yet like a good earthly father, He is completely willing to forgive them when they come to Him in true repentence and trust. That is why the Cross is central in the forgiveness of sin.

State Senators Like Fan Mail With Specific Recommendation

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 11—If you want to win attention and influence senators, write them letters to the statehouse, Columbus.

Not just letters saying "vote for bill No. umpty-ump." Tell why you like or dislike measures. Be opinionated—specific, that is.

Such fan mail is dear to the hearts of Ohio senators and most of it is answered, even if writers live outside a legislator's district.

There's a big difference in senatorial minds between fan mail and form mail. The latter is all alike and tiresome reading.

Form mail—and it floods senators' desks—often gets an acknowledgement card but little else. Occasionally an instruction sheet for a form mail campaign is mailed in by mistake, relieving the monotony.

But fan mail. Ah, that's different. No senator who takes his politics seriously ignores it. He answers, and often with genuine thanks.

Arguments For Bills

Thoughtful letters frequently provide legislators with arguments for their bills and are cited in committee hearings, if the going gets rough, as adequate reason for a senator's stand.

An Associated Press poll showed today that Ohio's 36 senators by their own estimates receive an average of 5,630 pieces of fan mail weekly. Individual averages range from more than 500 to a score for some first term freshmen.

Mail comes to their homes and business offices, but mostly to their boxes in the statehouse postoffice. And volume is gaining.

Newspaper accounts of hearings on bills to boost public school subsidies outlaw bingo as gambling, permit sale of liquor near state and county fairs, pay bonuses to veterans and the like immediately swell the volume of mail.

Telegrams Frequent

The heaviest days are Monday and Tuesday, probably because most fan mail is written over the weekend, senators surmise. Telegrams also are frequent.

Senate Postmaster Walter Weaver of Toledo and Assistant Postmaster D. E. Rogers of Lorain say the individual senatorial average is at least 15 letters a day. The previous session's heaviest day brought in 11,000. Mail now is heavier than at this time last session, they assert.

Legislation isn't all that interests writers. One woman wanted her senator to get some medicine from the drug store next to the Neil House" because she couldn't find it in stores at home. He took it to her.

Others want friends or relatives released from the penitentiary. An Akron writer wanted two liquor permits for "a friend."

Stops for Bologna

One senator stops weekends for a famous bologna made in a town on his route home. Cheese and maple syrup are other favorites of constituents.

A veteran senator was informed his name would be inscribed on a political club program as a patron for $10 and that he and his friends could attend the dinner at $5 a plate. That one went unanswered.

Few "crank" letters are received, although some are abusive.

Ailing Sen. Tom W. Jones (R-Meigs) holds his own when it comes to fan mail. Because of his long legislative career, his mail probably outstrips the others over an entire session, postal officials estimate.

Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, who presides as president of the senate, gets a big mail, partly as a result of his weekly radio broadcasts.

Requests of All Kinds

Thomas E. Bateman, veteran senate clerk, receives requests of all kinds, including pleas to vote on certain bills although he can't ballot because he isn't a senator.

Currently the most popular subject for letter writers this session is the Daniele-Cramer school bill. Some are in verse and senators expressed belief others were written by pupils and signed by parents.

Some subjects have a perennial appeal. Senator Shurtz says hearings on his bingo bill always produce mail, some against his stand.

The most recent fan mail flood developed over a bill to permit fixing of minimum barber and beautician prices.

L. M. Francis Passes Florida Bar Exam

Lewis M. Francis, former Marion attorney, has passed the bar examination in the state of Florida and will be admitted to practice some time this week, word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Francis of Harding Highway W. states. The three-day examination was held in February.

Mr. Francis practiced law here for several years before entering service in World War II in April, 1942. He was discharged with the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserves in December last year.

Mrs. Francis and their two-year-old son, Lewis Marsh, will join him at Stuart, Fla. where he has been located since leaving the service.

Nassau Mines Tourist Gold Columbus Missed

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 12—A flight of wealth from more disturbed lands may bring this colorful sea-girt British archipelago—long a playground of the rich—its fourth flood tide of prosperity since Christopher Columbus landed in 1492.

Hal Boyle

Columbus, the first disappointed tourist, came seeking gold. In the centuries since then the leisurely Bahamians have convinced later wayfarer they should bring their own gold if they wanted any fun.

First privileged class to enjoy this blue and coral paradise were the pirates, including the notorious Blackbeard. He impressed the happy natives less with his bloodthirsty executions than by his genial habit of tieing sulphur matches into his tremendous beard and setting them afire.

Prosperity came again during the blockade running days of the American Civil war, when the desperate South sent over its cotton and household treasures in exchange for guns and ammunition. This trade enabled British colonial officers to build most of the government buildings still standing in Nassau.

Prohibition Brought Roads

Profits garnered during the prohibition era, when stateside rum runners found here ample supplies of Scotch and rum, supplied the funds for the island's fine roads.

One local liquor dealer made so much money — the activities were all legal on the British side—he built a fine 35-room steel-anchored mansion on a ridge overlooking the sea.

"Him and his wife lived alone in dat big house," said a native taxi driver. "Him on one side—her on d' udder."

The biggest boom came during the war, when Nassau was a great airbase, and local employers still complain of the effect high wages had on the native population.

"Ruin Their Character"

"It ruined their character," one said. "They don't want to go back to the old standards—and that's all the island will support."

Native women are less choosy than the men. Winter residents can hire a maid for $4 a week—"with basket." The "with basket" clause means she has the right to tote food leftovers home to her own family.

Businessmen now see as their only hope to avoid a slow decline the influx of foreign capital by investors attracted by the climate and the colony's freedom from income tax.

"This year an unusual number of people came from the United Kingdom," one businessman said, "a lot of English people are investing here, and we've had more lords and ladies than you could shake a lorgnette at. These people are convinced the Bahamas have a good future."

Weather Better Than England's

In any event the food and weather are better than in England. There are unofficial reports that the British Labor government is considering action to halt the flow of cash here from the financially-beleaguered home islands. Bahamians have resisted all pressure from Britain to help in this program by adopting stiff local income taxes.

"We need investors here, and an income tax will scare them away," is the Bahamian position.

"This has always been a resort for wealthy people, and in normal times we must have them to exist. Our 700 islands are scattered over 70,000 square miles of ocean and aren't suitable for much large-scale agricultural development."

So the Bahamas are back in business as a high-priced tourist farm, selling sand and sea, sun and scenery — the enduring gold that Columbus missed.

ASK END OF CURB ON MARGARINE COLORING

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12 — Industrialists, farmers and housewives appealed to the legislature yesterday for removal of the restriction on the coloring of oleomargarine.

During the first hearing before the senate commerce and labor committee on a bill to permit margarine manufacturers to color their product with the same coloring matter used by the industry, N. B. Betzold of Cleveland, representing the margarine industry, said there is "plenty of room" for both margarine and butter, but the dairys are opposing the legislation because "they fear economic competition."

Two farmers from northwestern Ohio who operate dairy farms and also raise soy beans for the manufacture of margarine, asked the legislature to repeal the old law which prevents the coloring of margarine. They said it is "the most absurd law ever put on the statute books."

Pointing to the time consumed in coloring margarine in the home, Mrs. Maude Jackson, representing the consumer conference of greater Cincinnati, told the committee "it is an injustice to legislate against one product and not another." She said the law should be enacted to benefit every one and added, "in the past there have been too many pressure groups determining our laws.

The state law prohibits the manufacture or the serving of colored margarine for human consumption.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive
Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell
Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Any Other Ideas?

THERE'S an interesting coincidence in the fact that the 14-month-old J. I. Case Co. strike in Racine, Wis., came to an end the same day a group of congressmen told the house labor committee that compulsory arbitration seems to be the only way out of labor difficulties.

The Case strikers, who lost more than $11,000,000 in wages during the strike, returned on the same wage terms offered them last October and without provisions for a closed shop or compulsory checkoff of union dues. The strike was in reality a battle of attrition in which the company was stronger than the union. Compulsory arbitration would have prevented it.

Unions and management have expressed what the congressmen call "horror" at the compulsory arbitration plan, but no one has come forward with anything better. Under the proposal, when management and labor agreed to disagree, it would be the government's responsibility to see that the workers, having been denied their right to strike, had wage scales and working conditions comparable to those in related industries.

With the prospect of a telephone strike in the not-too-distant future, and with the government's seizure power under the Smith-Connally act having expired, the nation will need some measure to protect it from paralyzing tieups. Compulsory arbitration may be the answer. Anybody have a better idea?

A Feminist Leader Passes

WITH the death of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the last of the principal leaders of the American women's suffrage movement passes from the scene. A lieutenant of Susan B. Anthony in the long feminist campaign which finally won votes for women in 1920, Mrs. Catt also lent her support to the efforts of women in other countries to improve their status and was an indefatigable worker in the cause of world peace.

The women to whom goes her heritage can best honor her memory by carrying on a continuing and intensive study of world and national affairs so that they may more intelligently exercise their right of franchise—the right that Mrs. Catt, as much as any other individual, won for them.

Another Statehood Candidate

REPRESENTATIVE DANIEL L. O'TOOLE, New York Democrat, wants New York City, not Hawaii, to be the 49th state. The congressman will appear before the house this week to ask that legislation be initiated separating the metropolis from the rest of the state.

Congressman O'Toole points out that 70 per cent of the state taxes collected in New York is expended in other parts of the state, and that 80 per cent of the cost of maintaining the state highway system is paid from city-collected state taxes. Also, New York City's legislative delegation at Albany is invariably out-voted by rural delegations on questions where the rural and city votes are divided.

Congressman O'Toole's complaint is heard in every state where a large city covering a few election districts pits its strength against thinly-settled rural areas covering many districts. At regular intervals, Chicago chafes at being the tail on the Illinois kite and Cleveland and Cincinnati frequently are very unhappy about the way they are shoved around at Columbus.

If serious consideration were given New York City's statehood prospects, everybody would want to get in the act. And the only state left would be the state of confusion. Congressman O'Toole's remarks would best be "noted and filed."

Rabbits in Charge of Lettuce

VAN A. BITTNER, whose prestige in CIO gives him the right to talk for that organization, has a novel idea about labor legislation.

"Men who know nothing about a proposition shouldn't deal with it," he informed the 25 members of the labor committee of the house of representatives, after charging that none of them so much as knew what he was talking about in any discussion of labor legislation. In short, congress should leave labor laws to labor leaders.

This was considerably more than a studied insult to the members of a congressional committee. It was an admission by a front-rank labor leader that he and many other labor leaders consider themselves and their organizations to be above and beyond congressional control. There would be only one exception—if the control were to be exercised by persons responsible solely to the unions.

By the same rule, congressmen who weren't businessmen couldn't legislate in the field of business. Mr. Bittner wants to put rabbits in charge of the lettuce, because rabbits know all about lettuce. It would be fine for the rabbits. But it would be—has been—hard on the lettuce.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Learns Why Stock Market Reacts Strangely.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11—These are strange times. The stock market did not go up at the news of the Republican election victory. It did not go up when the administration reduced margin requirements, or at the Lewis supreme court decision. Plainly it refuses to react favorably that what it would call good news. Yet it is sensitive on the downside, falling last week at mildly bad possibilities, and indeed falling occasionally when there are no visible reasons.

I asked a man who knows to explain this to me. Why does the market not follow events?

His reply — substantially this: Stocks are only held but stockholders are no longer fooled by news as easily as in former days. The value of a stock is simply what it is worth, and it is worth today no more than the economic situation of the country—and that situation was not changed at the Republican election, and has not been changed yet. Furthermore it is too large a factor in the value of stocks to be influenced very much by a reduction of margin requirements, merely making it easier to buy stocks.

On the under-side of the matter, stockholders are sensitive themselves to the failure to correct economic defects, or delays in correction. The longer this goes on, the more sensitive they will be.

The stock market, then, is right, he says. Illogical as it may seem on the surface, the market view is really sound.

What Is Remedy

What could correct this situation, I asked my friend. What developments would the market consider to be effective?

His reply was that if the Republicans got together in congress and issued a statement saying this will be done and that will not be done; that the economic situation will be taken hold of in a firm leadership grasp, then the market might consider the prospect of effective leadership to be realistic and sound, and stocks might go up.

Better yet, if Truman and the Republican leaders get together on a statement saying they will quit playing politics and recognize the condition of the country to be an incipient crisis as it is, people might be convinced that some confidence is worth while concerning future developments.

But as long as they continue fighting each other over such comparatively minor issues as Bilbo, two terms for presidents, investigating war profits and dragging out in squabbles the consideration of such important matters to the economy as budget cutting and tax reduction, they will never get anywhere. They are both playing politics when politics should be entirely avoided.

The Democrats are running Truman for president again 20 months ahead of time. (See Hannegan and Clark statements recently.) They act as if they had not lost an election at all, as if there were no dissatisfaction in the country whatsoever, and indeed they have made a Gallup poll believe Truman is popular enough to get reelected although he has not done a single, solitary remedial thing.

Why, the Republicans have not succeeded in taking any action even on Bilbo (my friend went on.) They are getting sucked into lending money to save British interests around the world while doing nothing about our own. The Democrats are sucking them in on everything, or trying to and succeeding to a degree which obstructs action.

Two Party Government

The Republican election victory should have reestablished two party government. This is the essence of democracy. Whenever you get a one party government it is a totalitarian dictatorship, no matter what you call it. We had that under Roosevelt. Men of brains and people without them were both afraid to speak their minds. There was no opposition party. The late President did not allow one to exist.

But two party government definitely does not mean that all progress be nullified in political wrangling. It assumes both parties will have some sense. Unless they do you might as well have a dictatorship, for at least you will get somewhere, even if it is not where you want to go. Both party leaderships so far have been short-sighted and predominantly political in nature; therefore self-nullifying.

I left my friend with the feeling he had been a little harsh on the slow moving and devious politics in Washington. But I also left with the knowledge firmly established that the Republicans do not enjoy the support of the Conservatives, at least not a certain highest if not very influential segment of it, which we seldom see in Washington. The Republicans, it seems again (as I have observed before,) merely won a leadership opportunity to do something and have not yet done it.

At any rate I found the answer to the riddle which has long puzzled me of why the stock market does not react normally.

Seeking to increase their listenership, the state department is featuring popular music on its shortwave broadcasts to Russia.

While approving the effort to get the Soviets to understand us better, one can but wonder: Does "Open The Door, Richard" really do us justice?

One knew, of course, the state department works in devious ways its miracles to perform. But imagine the Old Lamplighter as an ambassador without portfolio.

Music may well have charms to soothe our sulking former ally. But the programs must be selected with care. Even language experts in the USSR could be more confused than enlightened by such contributions to international misunderstanding as "Chickery Chick" and "Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah."

Moreover, one can just see the suspicion mounting in the Kremlin if nightly from America is beamed the obviously coded query: "How are Things In Glocca Morra?"

Still, music speaks a universal language. Singing commercials may well revolutionize international diplomacy as we have known it.

The Long-Suffering Greeks

THE struggles of the Greeks, first to win independence and then maintain it, have held the sympathy of the democratic world for more than 125 years.

President Monroe took note of Turkish oppression of the Greeks in a message to Congress in 1822 when he said: "A strong hope is entertained that the Greeks will recover their independence and resume their equal station among the nations of the earth."

In 1823 Daniel Webster introduced a resolution calling for appointment of an American envoy to Greece, equivalent to recognition of Greek independence. Speaker Henry Clay gave fiery support to the resolution and, in the great tradition of American oratory, the House chamber echoed with references to Marathon, Thermopylae, Aristole and Euripides.

Despite this demonstration of sympathy the resolution was laid aside when John Randolph of Roanoke as brilliant and enigmatic a man as ever sat in an American legislature, pointed out that the resolution would be meaningless as long as the United States was not in a position to give Greece material aid.

So the Greeks struggled on with only the best wishes of America. In 1827, Great Britain, France and Russia intervened and a joint naval task force put the Turkish fleet to flight at Navarino. In 1829, Turkey acknowledged the independence of Greece. The United States had a naval squadron in the Mediterranean at the time but the American policy of non-intervention kept it from taking any active part in Turkey's defeat.

Risks Mount In Night Driving

HARTFORD, Conn.—A motorist can see an unexpected object at night only half as far ahead as an expected one.

Surprise is one of three main factors which influence the safety of night driving, according to a booklet, "Danger in the Dark," published by Aetna Life Companies.

The others are speed, which cuts the stopping distance 20 feet for each added 10 miles an hour, and glare.

"The faster you drive at night," says the booklet, "the more you reduce the distance you can recognize the danger ahead."

Tests show the color of road surfaces seem to have little effect on the distance at which a driver can see an object ahead.

The conclusions are based on tests conducted at General Electric's Nela Park engineering department, Cleveland.

America's Decision on Greece

GREECE may be the key to many things, U. S. officials believe. The map shows the little country and her neighbors which officials say are involved in a contest between democracy and Communism.

By SIGRID ARNE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—The American agreement to pick up the British chips in Greece, if confirmed, would put the United States on a diplomatic course stretching down the years. It could cost many more than the initial millions for the little Mediterranean country.

State department officials, at work on the problem, say baldly that this is the major turning point toward which the international irritations of the past two years have been pushing the United States.

The decision, if taken on Greece, would lay down a major policy which would have to be applied in other parts of the world, as occasion arises. That the United States will pour money and help into any country where it looks like Communists are about to grab the government of a people the majority of whom don't want Communism.

Political Reason

That is about the political reason the British have been in Greece, and the reason they asked the United States to carry on because the depleted British treasury can't do the job.

But Greece is important far beyond its local needs. It is regarded as a global kingpin in any Anglo-American attempt to stem the spread of totalitarianism.

If Greece slips into the Communist basket, British and American officials see a much quicker spread of Communism to both East and West.

To the East: if Greece falls, as they see it, Turkey goes. Turkey gone, the Middle East Arabian states would collapse, and with the Middle East gone, the next would be India and China.

To the West: if Greek Communists get the upper hand, officials here see an upsurge of Communists in both Italy and France, and a blow to the democratic parties of the middle.

The result, say officials, would be an isolated Western hemisphere clinging to free elections and free trade, greatly outnumbered by the populations under the hammer and sickle.

Expensive Job

To prevent this would be expensive.

Since the war ended the British have poured $200 millions into Greece, exclusive of the costs of keeping their troops there. The United States has given the Greeks another $125 millions in loans and credits. Much more is needed. The British think about $350 millions spread over the next five years would stabilize the Greek government.

Whatever it costs, the state department closed-door councils have decided that the job will be done properly or not at all. They are not prettying the problem up for the congressmen who will have to vote the funds.

Europe Watched

They are pointing out that, if the United States decides to hold the line in Greece, it must prepare to hold the line in Europe. At that point state department men refuse to name further nations.

But European diplomats here think France is the key to Europe and France would be a much more expensive nation to bolster than Greece.

In the Far East the key, for all its home-made confusion, is still China. For the time being that nation is getting the hands-off treatment from the United States, but there is reluctant admission here, that once having picked up the gauntlet, the United States must eventually listen to China's troubles again.

But American help to Greece, or to any other country in similar plight, will get no British treatment, but made-in-America treatment.

British Disagreement

British and American officials differed widely, when Winston Churchill was prime minister, over individual Greeks who were to be helped back to power. The Americans never approved the British aid to the Greek king, because of beliefs that the majority of Greeks didn't want him back. But at that time the British were the main ally of Greece, and under their policies, Greece still has unrest.

American officials think that further U. S. loans to Greece will have to be tied with some very tough ropes, ropes which, they hope will cut off both Leftists and Rightists and permit the majority, middle parties top power.

And that policy would be applied in other countries.

State department policy stems from the American belief that majority rule is best, and from the fear that the spread of totalitarianism could shackle the world's struggle toward democracy for decades to come. Officials say it has nothing to do with "preserving the British empire" as so many comments would make it.

Similar Ideals

There is this tie: The British have stood for about the same legal system, the same government and the same trade rules as the Americans.

To preserve that type of world—held in balance for centuries by vast expenditures from the British treasury—the United States must now step in.

Weakened British finances are leaving vacuums around the world. Those vacuums must be filled. With what? Democracy or totalitarianism? The decision on the Greek question will be the answer.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, March 12, 1937.

Five bodies had been brought to the surface and weary rescuers sent word that 11 others had been located following an explosion which shattered MacBeth mine at Logan, W. Va.

President Roosevelt, traveling in a new private car coupled to a special train, approached the end of a 721-mile journey for two weeks' rest at Warm Springs.

The LaRue Sportsmen's club was host to 275 at its annual banquet in the LaRue School building. Speakers were Earl Hanefeld, state director of agriculture, Boss Johnson of Aurora, Ind., sports speaker and writer and Arthur B. Fuller of Cleveland, chief preparator for the Cleveland museum of natural history.

Leo Stuber, employe of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. for half a century, was honored with a testimonial dinner given by officials and employes of the company at Hotel Harding.

The Marion County Federation of Farm Women held their fifteenth annual indoor picnic in the First United Brethren church community house.

A five-man team representing the Marion Revolver association defeated the visiting Mansfield target squad by 118 points at the Eagles' building. On the Marion team were R. Feld, R. Groll, L. Groll, M. N. Landes and K. Strine.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, March 12, 1927.

B. C. Decker, Marion county auditor, completed a report listing the county's road and bridge bonds at $824,879.

Mayor Earl M. Hazen appointed Ray R. King, superintendent of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., as a member of the city board of hospital commissioners to succeed Josiah Bindley, who had resigned after serving several years.

Clyde Porter, 31, Hocking Valley railroad switchman, suffered injuries in an accident in the yards here which necessitated amputation of his left arm below the elbow.

The Marion National Mills started producing flour from Kansas hard winter wheat after completing installation of equipment necessary for handling that type of wheat.

Rumors of war circulated wildly through Marion when a signal for mobilization of D company was sounded at midnight by ringing the courthouse bell. It developed that it was merely the company's annual mobilization test call.

Elmer T. Boyd, 55, former city solicitor and deputy county recorder, died in City hospital.

More than 1,200 persons, employes of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. and members of their families, attended the "Frolics of 1927" staged in the company's new recreation hall by employes of Departments 19, 90 and 91. Special features included quartet numbers by Charles Bowers, Roy Snyder, Irvin Dutt and William Roberts, a blackface comedy act by Otto Miller with his sister, Miss Rhea Miller, playing the piano accompaniment, clog dance by Henry Clark, violin selections by Arthur Roush and ballet dancing by Miss Virginia Silliman.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Heiby of Waldo.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Automobile Driver

Consider the automobile driver!

He applauds speeches urging the brotherhood of man and goeth out upon the highways to terrorize his fellow creatures.

He warmeth up to sermons on "Love thy neighbor," and hurryeth forth to leap into his flivver and give no man an even break!

He writeth a letter to the editor complimenting him on an editorial "Politeness Pays" and scrameth into his gasoline chariot to scatter pedestrians to the four winds.

He giveth a long talk to Junior on the importance of good manners, and on the way the office bawls out a dozen old ladies clogging in midtraffic with their arms full of bundles.

He sheddeth all kindness once his hand toucheth a steering wheel!

II.

He taketh off his hat in an elevator full of strangers as a mark of graciousness; he stepped aside to let the ladies off first; he leapeth into his beach wagon and snarls, "Gwan, ya dope!" at mothers trying to push baby carriages across the street.

He amazeth the populace with his bows and scraping when afoot; he bows gallantly to right and left; he stoppeth to pat kiddies on the head; but he steppeth into his sedan to champ a bite and slam his way rudely through an outfit of Mothers' Clubs.

He writeth an essay on the importance of the Golden Rule in daily life; he loseth no time jumping aboard his puddle-skipper to chase men and women up telegraph posts and into the upper branches of trees.

He is a Dr. Jekyll afoot but a Mr. Hyde in technicolor behind a windshield.

III.

He sendeth a check to a society to bring civilization to the savages, and then driveth down Main street bellowing at fellow motorists, denouncing elderly women and making sulphurous cracks at one and all.

IV.

He throweth his hat in the air and cheereth for campaigns to give the other fellow a break in life... and, climbing into his flivver, he snarleth at a fellow autoist who giveth him not the complete right of way.

At home he waxeth strong in disapproval of the intolerant, the impatient and the rude; but from an auto he hurleth epithets at anybody who presumeth to occupy the highway with him.

In a gas-phaeton he changeth from a gentle soul to a roaring lion.

His foot upon an accelerator converteth him from a gentleman into a hog.

Once behind a windshield, he becometh a menace, a hoodlum, an ape-man and a bum.

He seemeth like Lord Chesterfield in the home, but becometh Dracula in a motorcar.

It's all done by gasoline!

I love little taxes;
Around me they swarm

They'll do me no harm.

Higher taxes on hotel rooms, meals, cigarets, gas and drinks are now proposed. It is only a matter of time when we will say "Lemme know the tax on an order of ham and eggs so I can decide whether to go any further with the idea."

Celebrating 20 years at the place, Rene Carroll, famed hat-check girl at Sardi's in New York, reversed the field and tipped the customers. The dead have not been counted.

They're Off

By TRUMAN TWILL

As sure as there is going to be green grass and little green apples, the style-show fluffies will get in our hair again this spring.

We refer to the super-mice who get pretties up in what the well-dressed wigglies are going to wear this season, then undulate across the horizon while underprivileged dolls take visual notes and do rapid calculations about clipping old bag-ears in his checking account.

What we want to know, what we can't understand, what we never can comprehend is why the style-show wrens who do all that wriggling never wriggle that way outside—and if they ever did, whoooops!

They do all kinds of things in style shows that would bring the man with a net on the double-quick if tried on the streets in broad daylight. Such as that walking-on-eggs stuff where they change course all of a sudden and veer off to the northeast. If a cute clutch ever tried that on a main thoroughfare, the cop would murmur, "You going to step along like a lady lady, or am I going to have to pinch you where it'll hurt?"

Then there's that pivot the chicks work every time in style shows, where they slam on the brakes and whirl around as if someone had sprinkled arnica on their padding and it was beginning to hotten up with honest endeavor. A couple of those loose on Main street would bring the paddywagon to pick up some fleamate with no visible means of support.

Apropos of visible means of support, the clothes-horses will be padded around the hips this year—and quit laughing. They're making skirts longer to hide bird legs, piano legs, bow legs and knock knees, but adding hip pads. The trick is to let the girls whose padding won't come off fool some of the people some of the time. They have to catch husbands, too, stupid.

The ultimate goal is to equip every skirt in this country with enough space on the rear elevation to spell out Philadelphia Sesquicentennial in letters visible at 40 paces—style-show paces, that is. Shoulder pads will be larger, and so will all other paddings, waddings and stuffings employed to create the illusion that the well-dressed woman bulges one place this year but some other place next year.

We can hardly wait for a style show, so we can see the pretties tossing their manes, mincing their steps, rolling their eyes and making every pad, wire and bustle bristle with a meaning all its own. Ho, hum, wonder what they'll think of next year.

Electronic Cockpits Train Crews

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Big new planes due in service this year will provide no surprises for their flight crews. Electronic flight trainers will duplicate every possible emergency condition that the crew would face in actual operation.

The devices, ordered by Pan American World Airways for its Boeing Stratocruisers and Republic Rainbows, will be replicas of the cockpits of the two planes hooked to controlling and recording mechanisms.

Crews of three will be trained as closely coordinated units.

The devices were developed by Dr. R. C. Dehmel of the Curtiss Wright Corporation.

Future for Coke and Stokers

Possibilities of periodic coal strikes may turn the minds of householders to other fuels. Lack may have a similar effect as more and more cities may be expected to follow the lead of St. Louis in insisting that bituminous coal be burned smokelessly if it is to be burned at all. This possibility, according to Dr. Fieldner of the Bureau of Mines, indicates the need for research on coking coal so it will meet the requirements of future city ordinances. It would seem, also, to indicate future sales for stoker equipment.—O.S.U. Science and Appliance.

HOLY FAMILY THEME OF LENTEN SERMON

Rev. Mark Mindrup of Carey Preaches at St. Mary Church.

Rev. Mark Mindrup of the faculty of Our Lady of Carey Seminary at Carey, delivered another of the series of Lenten sermons on the theme "The Holy Family," Tuesday night at St. Mary Catholic church. Following the sermon Rev. Mindrup was the celebrant for benediction and led the congregation in repeating "A Pledge to Christian Marriage" and a prayer to the Holy Family. "Home" was the subject of Tuesday night's sermon.

The home at Nazareth and the Holy Family, Joseph, Mary and Jesus, should be the pattern in the home today, Rev. Mindrup said. We know, he said, that the home at Nazareth was poor and there was a frequent quest for work, but there also was peace and happiness, with Joseph the model father, the Blessed Mother spreading happiness and Christ Jesus the obedient Son.

He asked his listeners to "go back to the family home life" for the answer of the lack of obedience, respect or regard for the laws of God or man. One of the outstanding virtues of the home at Nazareth was charity, there was love for God nd naturally there love for God and naturally there ensued. Designating home as the highest university and the parents as the instructors" he pointed to lack of training in the home as the answer in many instances to why many young people end up bad. "We have to face facts, the source is the family and that is the reason charity must be the first factor, there must be peace and a willingness to make sacrifices for each other."

Parents, he said, must show an example, not only by word but by deed, and then if the child does not fulfill these laws, parents can say in good conscience, "I have done my best." Practice of the Catholic faith, not only on Sunday but every day, prayer, charity and a willingness to do for others and above all the home at Nazareth as a model were given by Rev. Mindrup as the foundation of "Home."

NEW BUILDING CODE FOR CITY DISCUSSED

Council Group Holds Meeting with Architect.

The building code committee of city council, members of the Chamber of Commerce and other interested persons met Tuesday night to discuss the building code for the city which is now being developed.

It was the second general meeting to be called by C. R. Pennisten, chairman of the council committee. Thomas W. Rayburn, local architect, discussed the code in its present state of preparation. Pennisten said he would call another meeting next Tuesday which would deal, among other aspects of the code, with its legal side.

A master code was drawn up several months ago under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, aided by approximately 50 local people representing various branches of the building trades, the consumer, utilities and other qualified persons.

The code has been turned over to council, which is now evaluating it and developing it further.

Jury Trial Scheduled In Court on Friday

William Barlow seeks judgments of $300.62 and $48.84 in a suit against John Mautz of near Marion which is scheduled for jury trial Friday in common pleas court.

In his petition Barlow claims he is due $300.62 for labor performed on Mautz's farm and he also asks for $48.84 for damages to his share of a corn crop which he maintains he was forced to store outside because the defendant refused him storage space.

In an answer and cross petition, Mautz denies the allegations of the petition and asks for judgment of $205 from Barlow on charges that he failed to comply with an oral working agreement to harvest certain crops on the defendant's farm.

Hugh E. Kirkwood Jr. is attorney for the plaintiff and John H. Clark attorney for the defendant.

California Raids Ohio Schools for Teachers

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—Teaching staffs of Ohio schools, already riddled because of low salaries, suffered again yesterday.

George M. Kibby, district school superintendent of Needles, Calif., set up a teacher recruiting office in a Columbus hotel and by mid-afternoon had received more than 40 applications. More teachers lined up in hotel corridors awaiting an interview.

Teachers said Kirby offered a $2,600 minimum for a bachelor's degree, with satisfactory work leading to a $4,000 maximum and a possible $500 raise in the Maximum within two years.

Columbus teachers now receive from $1,425 to $3,050 and the range in some communities is lower.

Ohio schools have lost 12,000 teachers during the last four years. Today the state's schools are using more than 6,500 emergency teachers.

REVIVAL SERVICE OPENS AT GREENWOOD CHURCH

Revival meetings at the Greenwood Evangelical United Brethren church opened Tuesday night with a large attendance. A song service was directed by Stanley Thomas, and Miss Lavina Strine sang. Rev. Russel Boaz of Youngstown read from II Chronicles, seventh chapter, and used as a text verses 15 and 16. He spoke on "The Expectancy of God." He expressed strongly that "The true revival is the expectancy of God satisfied."

Enlarging upon the account of when the fire fell as Solomon dedicated the temple at Jerusalem, he drew contrasts showing that the people of Israel would not always be so fervent as described in the Scriptures, quoting, "The Lord's eyes shall be open, and His ears attent unto prayer that is made in this place, and His heart shall be there perpetually."

He portrayed the creative power of God and enumerated many demonstrations of the divine power of Christ, such as, walking on the sea, commanding the wind and the waves to cease, and the calling forth of Lazarus from the grave, declaring, "His power in the material and physical realms are evidences of what He is able to do in the spiritual realm and the saving of the souls of men. Present experiences parallel those of Israel. And God stands expectantly to give us a revival."

Girl Scouts Charter Member Recalls Founding Day in 1912

Associated Press Newsfeatures

PHILADELPHIA, March 12—Mrs. Page Randolph Platt was 12 years old the March afternoon 35 years ago when she hurried home from school, her hair ribbon bouncing in the breeze, to see her cousin, Mrs. Juliette Low, just back from England.

Mrs. Low was late and when she hurried in, Page, her mother, Mrs. J. R. Anderson and her grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Wilder were waiting for her in the gracious Savannah, Ga., house facing Lafayette Square.

In her Chestnut Hill home, Mrs. Platt recalled the exciting visit of her cousin 35 years ago.

"She carried a strip of leather in her hand and while she talked she tried feverishly to tie knots," Mrs. Platt said

"We asked her what she was doing and she explained the 'Girl Guides' in England, under the direction of Lady Baden-Powell, were learning what their brother 'Guides' had been taught by Sir Robert.

"Mrs. Low, whom I called 'Cousin Daisy,' had the unique gift of immediately interesting others in whatever subject she became vitally interested in. Before she left we had heard all about the Guides.

Ready To Start

"The next day was Sunday and after service, on the steps of Christ Church in Savannah, Cousin Daisy buttonholed my mother 'Now look here,' she said in her impetuous way, 'I have been thinking all night. I intend to start the Girl Guides in this country and I want you to be the first captain Get Page and her friends to make up your troop'"

At Miss Nina Pape's school, where Page was a student, a group of eight girls had been going regularly on all day picnics every Saturday for the preceding year, learning camping and woodcraft.

It was to these girls Mrs Anderson suggested formation of a troop.

"We had our first meeting in an empty room of Mrs Low's yard house," Mrs. Platt recalls

"Mrs Low had only one book of 'rules' given her by Lady Baden-Powell and she and my mother took turns in reading them to us. Mrs. Low administered the 'oath of allegiance' and we all felt very solemn as we stood up before her.

First Roll Call

"Those who answered that first roll-call in March, 1912, were Helen Brigham, Jean Cunningham, Clarissa Gaines, Cecilia

MRS. PLATT . . . "Cousin Daisy started something . . ."

Garrard, Martha Randolph, Anne Read, Eleanor Taylor and I.

"The question of uniforms was a burning one, as each had different ideas But we finally settled on dark blue denim middie blouses and skirts, with light blue tie.

"Mrs Low discovered a cheap tailor for us down on West Broad streets, which being 'out of bounds' for us, made our trips to him events of high adventure.

That first troop was called the "white rose" and the colors were green and white Its activities continued for two years until its members went away to school.

The last official act of the troop came many years later, Mrs. Platt said, when its members sent white roses for the funeral of Mrs. Low

Since Mrs Platt has lived in suburban Philadelphia she has done little work for the Scouts but her activities have extended into numerous community service organizations.

"But I have and always will have a real interest in the progress of the Girl Scouts," Mrs. Platt said.

EPIDEMIC COLDS!
Here's help to AVOID and RELIEVE miseries

With epidemic colds still spreading, health authorities suggest these simple health rules: Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Get plenty of rest. Avoid crowds and people who have colds.

If You Do Catch Cold

Relieve distress with the best-known home remedy you can use—rub on warming, comforting Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

Why Results Are So Good

VapoRub's relief-bringing action starts to work instantly . . . and keeps working for hours in the night to soothe distress, relieve discomfort, and invite restful sleep. Often by morning the worst miseries of the cold are gone! Try VapoRub tonight. Get the one and only Vicks VapoRub.

IMPORTANT! To help prevent many colds from developing, do this: At the first warning sneeze or sniffle, put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol in each nostril. Follow directions in package. Va-tro-nol works right where 3 out of 4 colds start . . . relieves sniffles, sneezes and stuffiness . . . and actually helps prevent many colds from developing if used in time! So with colds spreading, keep Va-tro-nol handy and use it early.

If the miserable symptoms of your cold are not relieved promptly—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family doctor

THROBBIZ ON TREMOR
By The Associated Press
BARBERTON, O., March 12—An earth tremor that shook their area Tuesday night was believed to have been caused by a dynamite blast in clay pits of the American Vitrified Products Co. C. M. McKee, superintendent of the concern, said clay chunks so large they couldn't be lifted by a steam shovel were tossed at least 200 feet into the air. Nobody was injured and no damage was caused by the blast which loosened enough clay to fill company needs for a year.

Marquis James tells of "ONE OF METROPOLITAN'S GREATEST YEARS—1946"

IN LINE with its long-established "Open Book" policy, Metropolitan recently asked Marquis James, noted historian and a Metropolitan policyholder, to write the Company's Annual Report to Policyholders for 1946.

Mr. James was unusually well equipped to do this because he had just finished, at the request of the Company, a three-year study of Metropolitan's operations from the time it was founded. The results of this study have been published by the Viking Press under the title of "The Metropolitan Life, A Study in Business Growth," on sale at any bookstore.

In Mr. James' report of the Company's operations for 1946, he tells a story of continued progress in service to policyholders.

He points out—

—that payments to policyholders and their beneficiaries last year exceeded $630,000,000.

—that 2,400,000 people bought new Metropolitan policies in 1946.

—that the amount of new insurance purchased in 1946 topped anything in Metropolitan's 79 years in business.

—that the gain in insurance in force set a new high record.

—that the Company had one of the lowest death rates in its history.

—that, despite a trend toward increased costs caused primarily by a continued decline in interest rates earned, the Company has found it possible to continue dividends on Ordinary and Industrial policies during the coming year at the same rates as during 1946.

Mr. James' report is much more than a compilation of statistics. Among other things, he discusses the social value of Metropolitan's investments. For example, he characterizes Metropolitan's housing program as a——"vivid demonstration of how private enterprise works for the public good."

Whether or not you are a Metropolitan policyholder, you will find the Annual Report to Policyholders well worth reading. To get your free copy, just fill in and mail the coupon below.

RADNOR MAN NAMED TO STATE POSITION

O. R. Jones Gets Agriculture Department Post.

David Robert Jones, 31-year-old operator of 800 acres of farmland near Radnor, Delaware county, held the newest job in the state department of agriculture today—that of secretary in charge of young people's activities, The Associated Press reported.

Director Frank N. Farnsworth yesterday appointed Jones to the $4,600-a-year post, latest step in reorganization of the department.

Jones, Farnsworth said, would work with Edwin J. Bath, holder of the controversial $8,000 post as state fair manager and executive secretary to an expanded agriculture board.

The new position is a partial supplanting of the post of junior fair manager recently abolished by Farnsworth, thereby ousting Bryan P. Sandles, who for 15 years had managed the junior fair.

Jones' duties will include building and coordinating youth projects and developing closer relationship between the department of agriculture and the many county fairs in the state, Farnsworth announced.

Jones was president of the state and national Future Farmers of America in 1934 and has studied agricultural conditions in England, France and Hawaii.

He is a graduate of Ohio State university, where he was twice president of the university glee club. Prominent in farm organizations, he owns and operates several large farms in central Ohio.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Ashley Independent Agricultural Society which sponsored the first junior fair in Ohio, a member of the state farmers' institute staff and a member of the Grange.

STOCKS REBOUND FROM YEAR'S LOW

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 12—Stock leaders rebounded from lows of the year in today's market although some hesitancy characterized the move.

Near the fourth hour narrow advances were in the majority.

Nervousness over the Mediterranean situation in connection with President Truman's address to congress, placed a damper on bidding enthusiasm and limited trading volume.

Higher were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Allied Chemical, U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania Railroad (after announcement of a 50-cent dividend), American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Public Service of N. J. and North American. Johnson and Johnson jumped in initial response to a proposed 100 per cent stock dividend. In losing territory were Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, J. I. Case and Douglas Aircraft.

C. AND O. ORDERS 10 PASSENGER ENGINES

Special to The Star

CLEVELAND, March 12—Ten passenger locomotives costing approximately $3,560,000 have been ordered from the Lima Locomotive Works and Baldwin Locomotive Works, the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co. announced today. Delivery is scheduled for late this year.

Five of the engines will be the mountain, or 4-8-4 type, and will be built at the Lima Works. Baldwin will build the other five which will be high-speed passenger locomotives, or the 4-6-4 type, equipped with poppet valves for greater efficiency at higher speeds.

The new locomotives will be operated in connection with the $26,000,000 order placed last November to replace all of the Chesapeake and Ohio passenger equipment.

OHIO SCHOOL HEAD DEFENDS METHODS

By The Associated Press

WEST JEFFERSON, O., March 12—Herbert Kell defended today disciplinary methods at West Jefferson High school and asserted action of the town school board in backing a student protest was a "personal" move against him.

The veteran school superintendent and principal closed his desk and went home yesterday, climaxing a dispute over discipline which led to a student strike last week. The students returned to classes Monday.

Kell claimed his system of chopping 3 1-3 per cent from the semester grade of any student who had an "unexcused absence" had helped him whip a battle against truancy.

He declared that two board members, President Ralph Parsons and P. O. Harbage, both Madison county farmers, "would seize upon any situation" to oust him.

Wyandot, Crawford County Jobs Awarded

Bridge painting and gravel spreading jobs in Wyandot, Crawford and Richland counties were among several in Ohio awarded by the state highway department, The Associated Press reported today.

Twenty-four painting jobs drew scores of bids under the state estimates, despite the high cost of paint.

Jobs awarded in this area were: gravel state route 294 in Antrim township in Wyandot county, awarded to U. S. Construction Co. of Upper Sandusky for a bid of $897, estimate $1,000; bridge painting states routes 81, 113 and 103 and U. S. 25, parts of which are in Wyandot county, awarded to G. S. Zangoras of Pittsburgh for a bid of $2,419, estimate $2,640; bridge painting states routes 19, 100, 182, 294 and 97 in Crawford and Richland counties, awarded to W. Mitchell of Canton for a bid of $2,007, estimate $2,700.

Ousted Mansfield Clerk Charges "Political Trick"

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., March 12—Assertions of political trickery were reiterated today against Harry E. Hawley of Mansfield, state liquor department administrative assistant and former postmaster.

Attorney Herbert S. Duffy of Columbus, confirmed Joseph Letizia, a clerk in the Mansfield liquor store, made that charge against Hawley in connection with the ouster of Letizia from his job.

Letizia has been dismissed by the state liquor department and in a notice to the state civil service commission Letizia was charged with misfeasance and malfeasance.

Letizia has retained Duffy to represent him in an appeal to the civil service commission.

The liquor clerk was quoted as accusing Hawley of a "political trick" when the ouster first was announced.

TRUMAN

to the east," Mr. Truman said, adding:

"We must take immediate and and resolute action."

Accuses Soviets of Violation

Without specifying, the President, in effect, accused the Soviets of violating the agreement at the Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill Yalta conference for freedom of choice by European nations as to the kind of governments they want.

"The peoples of a number of countries of the world," Mr. Truman said, "have recently had totalitarian regimes forced upon them against their will. The government of the United States has made frequent protests against coercion and intimidation, in violation of the Yalta agreement, in Poland, Rumania, and Bulgaria. I must also state that a number of other countries there have been similar developments.

"At the present moment in world history nearly every nation must choose between alternative ways of life. The choice is too often not a free one.

"One way of life is based upon the will of the majority, and is distinguished by free institutions, representative government, free elections, guarantees of individual liberty, freedom of speech and religion, and freedom from political oppression.

Will of Minority

"The second way of life is based upon the will of a minority forcibly imposed upon the majority. It relies upon terror and oppression, a controlled press and radio, fixed elections, and the suppression of personal freedoms."

Mr. Truman closed by emphasizing the gravity of the steps he proposed. But he said the welfare of the United States and the peace of the world are involved—as well as the future of Greece and Turkey.

"This is a serious course upon which we embark.

"I would not recommend it except that the alternative is much more serious.

"The United States contributed $341,000,000,000 toward winning World War II. This is an investment in world freedom and world peace.

Should Protect Investment

"The assistance that I am recommending for Greece and Turkey amounts to little more than 1 tenth of 1 per cent of this investment. It is only common sense that we should safeguard this investment and make sure that it was not in vain.

"The seeds of totalitarian regimes are nurtured by misery and want. They spread and grow in the evil soil of poverty and strife. They reach their full growth when the hope of a people for a better life life has died.

"We must keep that hope alive.

"The free people of the world look to us for support in maintaining their freedoms.

"If we falter in our leadership, we may endanger the peace of the world—and we shall surely endanger the welfare of our own nation.

"Great responsibilities have been placed upon us by the swift movement of events.

"I am confident that the congress will face these responsibilities squarely."

CHOPS TOO HIGH, HOG PRICES DROP

Choice Cuts $1 a Pound Slows Retail Sales.

Hog prices began to level off at the Marion Union stockyards today after their sudden plunge early this week from a high of $28.25. Hogs were selling on the local market today for $26.50.

The drop started Monday when prices on top quality animals opened at $28.25 on the local auction and dropped 50 cents during the day, leaving the local stock yards with 277 hogs still unsold. Yesterday there was no local hog market, due to falling prices.

Animals weighing between 180 and 250 pounds were selling for $26.50 today and those in the 250 and 300 pound bracket were bringing from $25.50 to $26.

The high hog prices sent retail price of pork chops up to $1 a pound in some sections of Ohio today, The Associated Press reported. In Marion they were selling for 75 cents a pound. Boiled ham here was selling for $1.25 and boneless smoked ham for 98 cents.

The Columbus Packing Co., which reduced its quotations to $27 from $28, said people had quit buying pork at "current prices."

Cleveland's top of $27.50 was $2 down from last week' high, and $1.25 below Monday's quotation. Cincinnati and Dayton, where there was very little evidence of boycott, and Toledo, all reported drops of at least $1 on lighter receipts.

GRAND JURY AIRS TORTURE INCIDENT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 12—The torture of a rooming house operator in Grand Rapids, Mich. Sunday was under investigation by a special federal grand jury which today resumed its inquiry into a nationwide black market in sugar.

Three men pleaded guilty yesterday to assault charges in Grand Rapids superior court in connection with the beating of George Arrington, 53, and the burning of his feet in an effort, police said, to get information on the whereabouts of $38,000 the trio believed Arrington's son, Broadway, 27, had hidden in the rooming house. Broadway Arrington already has been indicted on OPA sugar violation charges.

Nathan M. Cohen, assistant U. S. attorney, said he expected to have the three Chicago Negroes accused in the torturing—Herbert Forman, 28, Raymond Lewis, 29, and Wallington Earst, 36—brought here from Grand Rapids later this week to appear before the jury.

BINGO

of the Cancer Research Foundation, Cincinnati.

Answering proponents' claims that gambling was immoral, Mercer contended that bingo for charitable purposes was all right.

Mercer said the McConnelsville-Malta fire department served all of Morgan county's 14,000 residents. The department received $825 from the two towns but spent $4,542.54 for equipment and the like, making up the difference from annual firemen's festivals which featured bingo.

Mr. Dotson, Shimer and Shurtz, himself a minister, contended that bingo was "not an innocent game."

"Bingo," said Mr. Dotson, "educates children to gamble" and "strikes at family life."

He added that the Protestant churches of Ohio "are back of this bill."

Farrell said bingo games conducted by Moose lodges constituted "great entertainment for older people, women especially." Heltman estimated that about 70 per cent of the players at bingo parties conducted by his organization were Protestants.

Reiners expressed regret that religion had been injected into the hearing "when no religious issue is involved."

Kansas Widow Named Catholic Mother of '47

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 12 — Mrs. Math Lies of Andale, Kas., the widowed mother of 14 children, last night was presented the medal for "The Catholic Mother of 1947" by Samuel Cardinal Stritch, archbishop of Chicago.

Mrs. Lies was awarded the medal at a meeting of the National Catholic Conference on Family Life.

"Do things for your children with a smile, and they will smile back," Mrs. Lies said in an interview. "Be with your children as much as you can. Pray, because the Lord is the giver of many great things."

Two of Mrs. Lies' 16 children have died. Of the 14 living two daughters are nuns, one son is a priest and another is a doctor.

be disposed of this way with less expense."

"What did he mean 'less expense'," Collopy asked.

"I have my own idea," Davis replied.

"What is it?"

"He meant the $3,500; that it more or less shut the thing up," Davis said, adding that he was asked to sign an affidavit that he would "more or less behave himself."

(From Sandusky last night Kleinfelder denied ever having received "a dollar" above his regular salary as liquor enforcement chief or ever having had "knowledge of any illegal exchange of money in regard to hearings" by the department. Kleinfelder said that there had not been sufficient evidence against Davis to take the matter before the state liquor control board and that it had been his "usual procedure" in such cases to make persons sign affidavits "pending good behavior."

Just Law Fee, Attorney Says of $3,500 Sum

CLEVELAND, March 12—Attorney H. David Lefkowitz maintained today that the money David Davis, Amherst, O., tavern keeper, paid him represented a law fee.

Davis told the state senate liquor investigating committee yesterday he had paid Lefkowitz $3,700 last year to prevent a citation by the state liquor board.

"Davis did pay me $3,500 for representing him in the case," the attorney said, "but the money was my fee and went to nobody else."

After the case was disposed of, Davis asked me what my fee was and I told him $3,500. He said he was afraid it was going to be $5,000, and I replied that I could make it $5,000 if he preferred. He laughed and said $3,500 was enough.

Lefkowitz said he had asked Davis to pay him in cash because "I wanted the money, no promises." The attorney said he believed he had given Davis a receipt when the money was paid in his Cleveland office.

Utah Youth Faces Death For Ohio Sailor's Murder

By The Associated Press

COALVILLE, Utah, March 12—Eliseo J. Mares Jr., 19-year-old son of a former Antonio, Colo., sheriff, faced either hanging or death by a firing squad today, following his conviction of first degree murder in the slaying of an Ohio sailor.

A jury last night deliberated four hours before returning its verdict, which carried no mercy recommendation. Mares was charged with the slaying of Jack D. Stallings, Corning, O., sailor, whose body was found in an irrigation ditch near here last fall.

Mares told the court that he shot Stallings while they were riding in the sailor's car in northern Utah because he thought the Ohioan meant to kill him. Stall- Calif., to be married.

670 PUPILS ABSENT FROM SCHOOL TODAY

Flu and Colds Cause Figure To Mount.

With reports received of various schools in the state closing because of a flu epidemic, a check was made here which revealed that a total of 670 pupils were absent from school today in the city due to flu and colds which is eleven and one-half per cent of the total enrollment. This report was received from E. E. Holt, superintendent of schools. The office of D. T. Mills, county schools superintendent, had not received any reports of large absences.

It is not considered an epidemic here, as normally at this time of year, there are around 470 pupils absent or about seven or eight per cent. Seven of the school buildings reported absence today less than yesterday. Central Junior High school has the most absence with 141 absent today. However, this was better than yesterday when they reported 156 absent.

St. Mary parochial school reported absences about average.

drug store at 5 a. m. was the first sign.

Muir's building was gutted. The structures housing Kessel's women's ready-to-wear, Cut Price shoes and Gallaher's drug store seemed to have suffered less damage.

The flames, apparently brought under control after a two-hour fight, broke out again in Gallaher's drug store at the corner of main and court place. The Knights of Columbus club room on the second floor of the Gallaher building was burned out.

The Aaron Blackford law firm in the Cut Price building and Walker's Display Sign Co. in the Muir drug building also were swept by flames.

All the buildings hit by the fire were two-story brick and stone structures.

The fire was discovered by two policemen, Woodrow Ziegler and Ted Longworth, who happened to glance out the door of the police station.

Smoke spread over the business district, penetrating other buildings and disturbing proprietors and clerks as they arrived to open their shops.

Herbert Kessel, owner of two of the burning Main street buildings and tenant of the third, estimated loss to the two-story brick structures and their contents would be between $175,000 and $200,000.

Three prisoners in the city jail, located across an alley from the drug store where the fire started, were removed to the county jail in the next block north as smoke filled their cells.

Electric power in the downtown area was interrupted by the fire.

WHEAT SUPPLIES UP BUT PRICE AT PEAK

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 12 — Although the volume of wheat arriving at the nation's terminals is more than double the receipts of a year ago, the price of grain hit another new 27-year high yesterday as flour milling interests continued scouring the country for additional supplies.

At one time, March wheat was quoted at $2.81 a bushel on the board of trade, the highest price since the record $3.25 on May 11, 1917.

Brokers said cash wheat arrivals are rapidly absorbed in commercial channels and that there is nothing resembling an adequate supply at terminal points to meet the need of food abroad. During the past seven weeks, the price of wheat has advanced approximately 50 cents a bushel.

As more cities heard announcements of immediate or impending increases in the price of bread, housewives with strained budgets found some hope in lower quotations for butter, hogs and lambs. Hogs were 50 cents to $1.00 lower and lambs 25 cents lower at the Chicago stockyards yesterday.

Following Monday's announcement by some oil refineries of a higher price for crude, the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio said it was boosting the price of gasoline 1½ cents a gallon, effective today. Some refinery interests indicated the price hike might become general soon.

OHIO WOMAN ACCUSED OF TRYING TO KILL HER BABY

Trampled Daughter Because of "Too Many Children"

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 12—A 35-year-old woman was in police custody today after telling officers she tried to trample her four-month-old daughter to death because she has too many children," Detective William W. Reed reported.

Youngstown hospital reported the infant in fair condition but said she may have internal injuries.

Reed said the woman told detectives she walked the floor last night, carrying the infant, and suddenly decided to kill the child.

A 14-year-old daughter said she was awakened by her mother's walking and went downstairs to investigate. As she reached the basement, the girl related, her mother asked her to "help me kill the baby," the daughter told police the mother then jumped on the infant.

The daughter said she grabbed the baby, rushed to the near-by home of a relative and called police.

Reed reported the woman has seven children, including three stepchildren.

DEFENDANT WINS IN WEICHOLD SUIT

Directed Verdict Follows Testimony for Plaintiff.

The judgment suit of Miss Anna Weichold against Springer W. Truman of Marion came to a sudden end in common pleas court Tuesday afternoon when Judge Ralph Sugrue of Tiffin, presiding at the trial, ordered the jury to direct a verdict in favor of the defendant.

Judge Sugrue ended the trial at approximately 3 p. m. yesterday, maintaining the plaintiff had not produce sufficient evidence to warrant consideration by the jury. It was not immediately known whether the case would be appealed.

The suit followed a petition filed by Miss Weichold, formerly employed by Truman when he was proprietor of the Saratoga Grill of 302 West Center street, in which she charged Truman owed her $7,800 for back salary, approximately $1,200 for the use of her automobile and $1,000 for money which she claimed he borrowed from her.

The directed verdict for the defendant came after testimony was heard from four plaintiff's witnesses.

Attorneys for Miss Weichold were Carhart and Carhart of Marion and Price and Price of Kenton. Truman's attorneys were W. P. Moloney and Martin and Reed, all of Marion.

Representative Reveals Threatening Phone Call

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 12—Rep. Kerns (R-Pa) told the house labor committee today he received an anonymous telephone call last night saying he had been seen dining with George P. McNear Jr., slain railroad president, and that "I'd better change my views about labor."

Committee members termed it a "startling disclosure" and called for an investigation by the group and the federal bureau of investigation.

McNear, president of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, was ambushed and killed by a shot gun blast Monday night near his home in Peoria, Ill.

Kerns related that the railroad president, who had been at odds with labor during a lengthy strike on his line, came to a table where the representative and his wife were dining at the Wardman Park hotel.

Kerns said that occurred while McNear was in Washington recently to testify before the committee about proposed labor laws. He said they chatted a couple of hours about railroading.

Committee Chairman Hartley (R-NJ) said he is "thoroughly convinced there is a direct connection between his (McNear's) slaying and his appearance before this committee."

Pope Says Nations Must Give Up Sovereign Rights for Peace

By CHARLES H. GUPTILL AND JOHN P. M'KNIGHT

World Copyright, 1947, by The Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, March 12—On the eve of the eighth anniversary of his coronation, Pope Pius XII told The Associated Press yesterday that nations must surrender some of their sovereign rights if a just and lasting peace is to be achieved.

The development of destructive atomic weapons, with the total war they threaten, should persuade the leaders of nations of their obligation to reach agreements insuring peace, he said.

In the last year—the first entire year of the Pope's reign in which there was no declared warfare—there has been no marked improvement in the world's outlook for peace, he said.

The Pontiff evidently was preoccupied over the prospect for the Moscow conference of foreign ministers, which opened Monday. He nodded assent to comment that the circumstances of the conference's beginning did not augur well for solid achievements in the shaping of peace.

The frail, friendly Pontiff, who 10 days ago celebrated his 71st birthday and the eighth anniversary of his election as Pope, today will commemorate at thanksgiving services in the famed Sistine chapel of the Apostolic palace the anniversary of his ascension of the throne of St. Peter.

Talks Freely of Problems

Yesterday, quite simply, he received these correspondents in his red and gold library, and talked with them freely on the problems facing the world and the church.

In the same library, at the same big uncluttered desk with its gold telephone convenient to his hand, he had received them just over a year ago, at the end of the brilliant consistories to create 32 new cardinals which called the crowning event of his reign.

At that earlier audience, the Pope showed the strain of consistory week and the ravages of a cold.

Yesterday, he was bright, cheerful, animated, obviously much better in health. His eyes sparkled behind their rimless spectacles. He smiled often. He spoke quickly, eagerly. In short, he looked fit.

The ankle he twisted last week while strolling in the Vatican gardens—he confessed he was reading as he walked—was entirely well, he said, even though he had resisted his physician's efforts to put him to bed, and kept on with his 18-hour working day.

"Too Much To Be Done"

There was too much to be done for him to rest, the Pope said.

Last year—with the end of the great war which broke out in the first year of his reign—the Pope had shown evident concern that the ideal of "peace with justice" would not be realized. He had announced this ideal of the start of his Pontificate, and had urged it upon the world in many other wartime and post-war pronouncements.

Yesterday, he gave these writers to understand that the events of the last year had not greatly raised his hopes.

In that earlier audience, it was specified that His Holiness could not be quoted.

Yesterday, the Pontiff who has set aside so many other precedents hampering his ministry in this modern world laid aside one more and gave the correspondents permission to record his answers to their questions, although not as direct quotations.

The Pope was asked whether events of the last year had tended to dissipate the world's feeling of uncertainty and anxiety over prospects for a just and lasting peace.

Little Improvement Seen

Despite the indefatigable diligence and determined efforts made by certain statesmen and some progress for the moment along one or another particular line, he replied, the events of the last year do not show marked improvement in the world's outlook for a just and lasting peace.

Moreover, the Pope said, he is afraid that this unfortunate condition will continue so long as the peace of Europe and of the world is considered solely under the light of what each state demands for its own individual security, and in the existing precarious circumstances one is allowed to increase its strategic positions and present its neighbor with accomplished facts.

As yet, positive, constructive ideas have not entered into the building up of world peace, he said, adding his hope that the United Nations organization soon may be placed in the position effectively to assume guarantees for the security of all.

The Pontiff was asked what, in the present period of relative and perhaps temporary tranquility after the preoccupations imposed upon him in war years, were his aspirations for the continued advancement of the church and for the greater well-being of mankind.

End Is Supernatural

The Holy See, he said in reply, is the center of the universal church. The end for which Christ established that church is the ultimate goal of all that the Pope does, hopes and prays for. That end is in the spiritual order, is supernatural. It is to bring the knowledge of Christ to all men and to communicate to their souls the grace of salvation which Christ purchased for them on the cross of Golgotha.

To attain that end, he said, the church requires freedom of action in every region of the world, and one must be constantly intent on defending and protecting that freedom.

At the present moment, however, he continued, his efforts are directed chiefly toward vindicating the freedom of the Holy See, of bishops and of Catholic associations of Christian charity and indeed of all Catholics throughout the world, to come to the assistance of those in need: To provide them with food and clothing, to arrange for the homeless, wandering millions and orderly emigration to some country where with proper safeguards to their religious and social needs they may begin anew the life of an honorable Christian family, that essentially with cell of human society.

The Pope was asked to comment upon his efforts to make the church responsive to the increasingly complex character of modern civilization.

Of Current Are

The church is made up of men, and men are commonly of the age in which they live, he replied. Hence the church necessarily must have an alert interest in each age in which her members live. And she will always do her best to make it possible and increasingly desirable for them to be efficient, eminent, influential children of their age and environment, provided their loyalty to God and His church is in no wise weakened.

If opposition between the church and the modern world is becoming more and more stressed in certain quarters, he continued, it is because there are leaders and groups in power today who aim deliberately at giving the modern world a character and policy of conduct that are anti-Christian, even anti-God. The world has already tasted the bitter fruit of power divorced from belief in God and respect for His law. Take away belief in God, and what is there to support the concept of objective law or to insure the inviolability of covenants freely accepted?

Hence, the Pope said, he deemed it a most solemn duty of his office to hinder in season and out of season any loosening of the bonds that unite human civilization with the fundamental principles of Christianity.

LARUE WATER WORKS PROJECT POSTPONED

Decision Based on High Cost of Materials.

Special to The Star

LARUE, March 12 — LaRue's $128,000 water works project has been postponed indefinitely because of increased prices of materials and labor.

Decision to hold up further work on the project was made after a meeting of council last week. Meeting with councilmen were engineers of the Alden, Stilson and Associates of Columbus, engineering firm employed to map the project; bond buyers of Cincinnati and Russell M. Wilhelm of Marion, attorney for the council.

Engineers estimated cost of the project would be between $25,000 and $50,000 higher than original estimates. They pointed out that a water tank which last year could have been purchased for $12,000 now would cost approximately $22,000.

Terms which the town could obtain on its bonds also are less liberal now than had been expected. The bond buyers pointed out they could take only three fifths of the total amount in income producing bonds and the rest would have to be financed locally.

The town was advanced $4,500 from the federal government for a preliminary survey of the project, which has been completed.

ALL-OHIO BASKETBALL TEAMS ANNOUNCED

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—The crown of basketball greatness was placed on the brows of 10 boys today as they were voted to first team positions on the 1946-47 Associated Press All-Ohio high school squads.

The five in class A were picked from some 3,500 boys playing at 213 larger schools, while the class B quintet is the top talent among more than 12,000 youngsters playing for 947 smaller institutions.

Several hundred coaches and sports writers did the balloting, and they named 193 class A and 181 class B youngsters for consideration.

Nuxhall in Breeze

Joe Nuxhall of Hamilton was so far in front in the voting that he almost lapped the field in snagging the class A center position and the squad captaincy. Nuxhall was one of three juniors to make the class A grade, the others being Dick Messner, Ashland's scintillating forward, and Shelby Lindville, six-foot five-inch guard for Middletown's defending state champs.

Larry Imburgia of Warren, a senior, grabbed the other forward job, and Don Smith of Newark the remaining guard position. All are over six feet tall except Smith, who stops at five feet 10.

Class A Selections

Larry Imburgia	Warren	F
Dick Messner	Ashland	F
Joe Nuxhall	Hamilton	C
Don Smith	Newark	G
Shelby Lindville	Middletown	G

SECOND TEAM

Joe Winkler	Hamilt'n Catholic	F
Bob Feger	Salem	F
Jud Millhon	Upper Arlington	C
Pete Spera	Canton McKinley	G
John Kornowa	Toledo Woodw'rd	G

Class A Mention

Among those receiving honorable mention in The Associated Press All-Ohio class A basketball team are the following: forwards—Sweet of Norwalk, Gerwin of Upper Arlington, Schenk of Newark, Bloor of Mansfield, Hoff of Lima Central and Williams of Mt. Vernon; guards—Cline of Mansfield, McConkey of Norwalk, Widdoes of Columbus North and Thrush of Columbus West.

Class B Nominees

FIRST TEAM

Jerry Jones	Corning	F
Bill Fittenger	Jefferson Union	G

Virgil Smith	Perrysville	G

Drake Named by AP

Dick Drake of St. Mary won honorable mention as center on the All-Ohio basketball team selected by The Associated Press.

Caledonia, Marion county league champs placed Freet at forward and Rodgers at Guard. Mayers of Pleasant also won honorable mention as forward.

Among the other honorable mention players are Campbell of Mt. Gilead and Betzger of Sunbury at forward.

Glen Hursey of Glenford, who made the class B team as a sophomore last year, clung to his berth this season and was the only junior named to the minor loop contingent. With him at forward is Bluffton's sharp-shooting Neil Schmidt, while Ralph Seever of Baltimore Liberty Union won the pivot position. At guards are Bob Werley, a little fellow from East Canton, and Orval Schram of Ottoville. Hursey is captain.

Score 400 Points Each

Hursey, Schmidt and Seever scored more than 400 points each in the pre-tournament campaign on which the balloting was based. Werley clicked for 260 points and Schram for 154, but it was their glue-like guarding ability that won for them the coveted laurels.

The teams, in every sense, would make a coach's dream come true. Speed, Stamina, scoring ability and rugged defense are attributes of both the class A and class B squads. The boys picked for the second and third teams were only a pace behind, and would provide more than ample reserve material for the toughest kind of campaign.

Some of the boys selected are pacing their team into the regional championship tournaments this weekend, but many have fallen victim to the "win or get out" title grind which has seen all but 32 of the state's 1,160 teams eliminated.

TRI-CITY CAGERS AT END OF YEAR'S TRAIL

Games today and tomorrow wind up the Tri-City league cage season.

Tonight Central plays at Edison and tomorrow Galion will be at Vernon.

Central, the Tri-City's top five, was upset by the Westenders the first time the schools met thus making this another of those anything can happen matches.

Vernon has been plagued with injuries this season but gets the Galion quintet on its own floor tomorrow afternoon which may enable them to reverse an earlier decision.

Smitty's Girls Take First Tourney Game

Smitty's opened in the girls double elimination tournament last night gaining an easy 43 to 15 victory over Ward Stilson.

The Y-Girls had been scheduled to oppose Universal Cooler in the evening's other match. However, the Cooler team yesterday notified league officials that it was dropping out of the meet.

The tournament will resume next Tuesday with Harpster Ex-Hi meeting Smitty's.

Only 300 Hitter In Tribe's Tepee Hurt

By The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz., March 12—The Cleveland Indians will start the 1947 season without the services of outfielder Hank Edwards, the only Tribesman who hit in the .300 bracket last year.

The Norwalk, O., redhead dislocated a bone in his right arm and also received pulled muscles when he fell heavily while lunging for a pop double stroked by Willard Marshall in yesterday's exhibition with the New York Giants.

Edwards probably will be out for six weeks. His loss probably will force President Bill Veeck to hasten his efforts to obtain another established outfielder.

The Giants also sustained a serious loss. Larry Jansen, a promising hurler who won 31 games for San Francisco last year, was struck on the left cheek by a line drive off Bob Feller's mat. His injuries were diagnosed as a malar bone fracture, contraction of the pupil in the left eye and a possible skull fracture. He probably will be out for at least two months.

The Giants won the game 8 to 3 to square the series at 2-2. Feller made his first start of the exhibition season and was tagged for eight hits in four innings. Ten Giants batted against him in the first inning. Four runs came over on four hits, two walks and an error.

Before his injury Edwards slammed one of three homers in the free-hitting contest. Joe Gordon of the Tribe and Bob Thomson of the Giants clouted the others.

DETROIT TIGERS SEEN AS TEAM LIKELY TO GIVE BOSOX TROUBLE

Camp Observers Think American League Champs in for Fight.

By The Associated Press

LAKELAND, Fla., March 12—There is a strong feeling around the training circuit that Detroit Tigers, who were beset with injuries and batting slumps much of the past season, have what it takes to give the Boston Red Sox a terrific tussle in the coming American league race.

At any rate, the opinion virtually is unanimous that the Sox won't make a runaway of it again, and it is more than likely that a smattering of the experts will pick the Tigers to win, even though they no longer have their cannon, Hank Greenberg.

The Tigers insist they won't feel Hank's loss at all if their two star outfielders, Dick Wakefield and Walter (Hoot) Evers, have good years at the plate.

Wakefield, potentially one of the game's greatest hitters, slumped to a .268 average last year. His teammates and Manager Steve O'Neill say he can't miss coming back. The Tigers are a confident bunch of athletes.

Evers, who came up last season hailed by a 21-gun saluate and a flourish, started off by breaking an ankle in training camp and went on through a heartbreaking series of hurts. He wound up with an anaemic .266. Now he has come back 20 pounds heavier and looks great.

Providing these two come through, the Tigers aren't worrying about Roy Cullenbine's ability to take over Greenberg's job at first base. Roy, a Detroit boy, has played a lot of first base off and on, including one pennant-winning stretch with the Yankees, and is perfectly at home there. Furthermore, he hit .335 to lead the Tigers at bat last year, when he was in the outfield.

Vernon Rapp Working With St. Louis Cards

Vernon Rapp, Marion's hard-hitting catcher of last season, is flying in high company this spring, according to the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times.

He is working out with the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals at their own spring training camp. Rookies and reserves from last season are divided into the Terrible Terrys, "managed" by Terry Moore and the Wildcats, with Enos Slaughter at the helm.

Marion's former home run specialist is holding down the berth of catcher with Slaughter's Wildcats.

Mid-State League Elects Officials at Marion Meet

St. Mary's Fetter New Vice President; Agree Upon Cage Co-Champion.

By GEORGE ROEST

Officials of the Mid-State league met at Hotel Harding last night for discussion of current league problems. Approximately 25 persons attended.

D. C. Musselman of Mt. Gilead was elected president. Gene Fetter of St. Mary vice president, and O. B. Nobel of Mt. Gilead was elected secretary-treasurer and was the only officer retained from last year. The Mid-State league is comprised of Marion St. Mary, Mt. Gilead, Marysville, Richwood and Carey High schools.

Co-Championship Discussed

The issue of co-championships was considered and an amendment was made to the league by-laws whereby play-offs will not be held in case two teams finish tied for first place. Such legislation was necessary because this season Marysville and Sunbury cage teams finished tied for first position and league rules had specified a play-off.

If a greater number of teams than this had finished in first place play-offs could have completely disrupted the plans for a spring sports program and would have been an anti-climax to tournament tension.

Trophy Decision Made

Another measure decided by league members was that permanent possession of the WMRN trophy could be gained only if a team won three clear cut championships. A' co-championship would not count.

The matter of trophies awarded by the league was also brought up. It had been suggested that in the case of dual rulers at the end of either a football or basketball season the money that was to be spent on one trophy be used in the purchasing of two trophies. It was decided, however, that the quality of the awards should not be diminished. Marysville and Sunbury will be awarded standard trophies for finishing in first place in the past cage season.

Reserves To Compete

Another matter agreed to was that reserve teams of Mid-State schools will vie for honors as do the varsity clubs and an award will be made to the squad which finishes in first place.

In the future seniors will not be allowed to play on reserve squads against league opponents.

The home team will wear white or light colored jerseys during the basketball season.

Sunbury officially resigned from the league and representatives from Carey attended last night for the first time as official members.

The Mid-State league has grown to be one of more highly regarded in the state as retiring president Jerry Kingsmore of Marysville said in a statement.

Kingsmore said, "In the past two years the Mid-State league has been very important and successful in developing its member teams."

Cites Tourney as Example

He cited as proof of this the fact that the league top three teams all went to the semi-finals in the class B district tournament this season and two of them, St. Mary and Marysville, played in the finals each losing the right to go to the regionals in overtime games.

D. C. Musselman in taking over his duties as president said, "We will continue emphasis on maintaining the highest standards of sportsmanship and competition in our league. We also hope to welcome several new members to our league in order to expand league interest."

One of the schools which will probably be considered at the next meeting Sept. 9 is Mechanicsburg.

All Mid-State Team

Four St. Mary cagers received berths on the Mid-State league All-Star team which was announced last night. It was picked by coaches and league officials.

Dick Schuler was named forward on the first string, Pat Bray forward on the second team, Dick Drake center on the second string, and Bob Stuber was given honorable mention.

The All-Mid-State team is: First team: Pete Campbell, Mt. Gilead, and Schuler, St. Mary, forwards; Herb Ward, Sunbury, center; and Dean Scheiderer, Marysville, and Bob Metzger, Sunbury, guards.

Second team: Bray, St. Mary and Jack McGuire, Marysville, forwards; Drake St. Mary, center; Less Wall, Richwood, and Roger May, Sunbury, guards.

Honorable mention: Stuber, St. Mary; Mannie Rogers, Marysville; Harold Finch, Sunbury; and John Dayton, Marysville.

Sunbury Player Sets New Mark

A new Mid-State league scoring record was set this season by Bob Metzger of Sunbury. This performer during the regular season dropped in 44 field goals and 15 free throws for a total of 103 points. This was in eight games.

The old record was 87 points made by Leo Robinson of Marysville last season.

Dean Scheiderer of Marysville also topped this mark as he dropped in 46 fielders and 8 free tosses for 100 points.

Schuler of Marion could have also retired the mark as his league record was 36 goals and 20 fouls for 92 points.

COURT RULES OHIO KILLER MUST DIE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 12—The Ohio supreme court today overruled an appeal motion of Russell Eugene Koons, convicted Springfield hatchet slayer, and fixed April 2 for his death in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair.

Koons, convicted of first-degree murder in the death of his mother Jan. 25, 1946, originally was sentenced by a three-judge court to die Jan. 17.

He won an indefinite stay in the court of appeals pending his appeal to the supreme court on grounds he was insane when he hacked her to death. His attorney, George A. Schwer, contended that Koons was "constiutionally psychopathic."

However, the supreme court upheld the appellate court's action affirming the trial court and left Koons only the hope that Gov. Thomas J. Herbert might intervene between now and April 2.

Six other men are in the penitentiary death row.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

IF Mary's plight had not been so serious, I cheerfully could have shaken her for the puzzle she was presenting to me.

She is so good an actress that I could not tell whether or not she had been asleep when Olga Veritzen pretended to read the unfinished manuscript of my second act, the while we were passing notes about the problem presented by Mary's dramatic and tempestuous flight from the sanitarium, and the black anger against her of her father-in-law who had financed her long hospital illness and her stay in the sanitarium.

Did Not See Notes

Of one thing I was certain. She had not seen the note-passing. Her head had been burrowed in the pillows all the time we had been talking. But Olga, when she had left, had closed the door behind her very softly. It could not possibly have disturbed Mary. Yet the next instant after the closing of the door, she had sat up abruptly.

But I could not contradict her statement, and at any rate, she had rested. So I said the conventional thing.

"I am so glad," I told her, "You needed sleep. Let me look at you. Yes, you are looking better."

"Then I won't have to have my temperature tooken?" she wheedled, as Faith might have spoken, before she went to school and outgrew "baby talk." That does not mean, however, that Faith has ceased wheedling. She is still past mistress of the art.

"Indeed you will," I said firmly. "I'm going to know just how you are before I let you out of here."

Mary looked around her judicially.

A Nice Prison Cell

"I don't care if you never let me out," she said. "This is a very nice prison cell; beats the one at the sanitarium all hollow. Comfortable couch, private bath, lots of sunshine, meals at all hours, what else could a poor gal want?"

"I'll consider your application," I told her, laughing as I generally do at her nonsense. "But first, put this under your tongue and keep your lips closed."

I advanced upon her firmly, thermometer in my fingers, as I had done so many times in her childhood, and with a wry grimace she opened her mouth and I put the thermometer under her tongue. From sheer force of habit, I deduced, she closed her lips upon it, but her eyes were mutinous, and I looked at her with what I hoped was the calm, professional gaze of a trained nurse.

Will Delay Removal

"Don't open your lips!" I warned her. "It will only delay my removal of the thermometer."

I sat down by the couch, put my fingers on her pulse and, lifting my wrist watch where I could see it, silently counted the beats. But, not wishing to distrub her, I kept my fingers on her wrist after I had finished, and mentally noted the count of her respiration. Then I took my fingers from her wrist, lifted the thermometer from her lips and looked at it.

"How'm I doin?" she queried, with an impudent tilt of her head and a gamin grin on her lips. But there was tense anxiety in her eyes.

"You have a degree of temperature," I told her; "a degree and three-tenths, to be exact. And your pulse is a bit rapid, although nothing serious."

"Breathin okay?" she queried carelessly, but I guessed that she was much interested in my answer.

Haven't Taken Cold

"Yes. I don't think you have taken cold," I told her.

"Praise be to Allah for that!" she said. "The 'bestest thing I could do without', just now, would be a 'cold.'

"I have no right to diagnose your case," I began, and she smiled warmly at me.

"I'd rather have your diagnosis than that of any nurse or doctor alive," she said extravagantly, "except, of course, Aunt Katharine. But you and she have been buddies—or is it sisties?—so long that your minds work as one."

"I wish she were here," I said, with a sudden nostalgic longing for the poised efficiency, the resourcefulness, and the gracious kindliness which are fused in the personality of Katharine Bickett, wife of my brother-cousin, my only "blood relative," and who, for so many years, has shared my problems.

"Why isn't she?" Mary demanded. "It isn't war-time now, you know."
